

What can I do with a major in... MUSIC - Music Ministry Emphasis

The Bachelor of Science in Music with an emphasis in Music Ministry is designed for the musically talented student with a passion for worship-leading and church ministry. The B.S. in Music Ministry does not qualify the student to be certified to teach public school music. All students who plan to declare music as their major must submit a Music Audition Application and go through an audition process to be considered for acceptance into the music program.

Strategies for Success:

- Be prepared to minister in other ways in addition to music. Music ministry is often a part-time job unless the church is very large.
- Subscribe to ministry publications and join ministry associations.
- Obtain part-time, summer, internship or volunteer experience in churches as well as hospitals, camps, or overseas programs, or in advocacy or service-oriented programs where music is part of the programming. The more you understand about how music fits in the ministry, the better prepared you are.
- Serve as a peer mentor, resident assistant, or student advisor to cultivate leadership and program development skills.
- Develop competencies in business management, computers, marketing, or other areas to broaden range of employment possibilities.
- Learn to articulate the transferrable skills provided by your liberal arts education: organization, written and oral communication, problem solving, leadership, and so on.
